Copper in bay imperils salmon, June 6, Bay Area, C1

The story misstated how much copper from brake pads makes it into San Francisco Bay. Although 190,000 pounds of brake-pad copper pollute the bay's watershed, 28,000 pounds make it into the bay, according to a study done by a coalition of brakemakers, environmental groups and state water regulators. Brake pads are the bay's No. 1 source of copper pollution.
